Blade in carbon steel XC75

This is the old blade that oxidizes when in contact with food.
The blade becomes more or less gray. This is a natural reaction.
See the forged bees on pages 9 & 10 and the models with options on the following pages

The bolsters and all the other parts are in shiny stainless steel (bolsters, springs, plates)

Maintenance

A Laguiole knife, an everyday companion, is fully guaranteed under normal use.

In general, after use, only clean the blade with a slightly damp cloth or sponge. Then wipe and store your Laguiole. If necessary, use dishwashing liquid. Clean the handle only if it has been soiled. Proceed in the same way as for the blade.

We do not recommend these uses: cleaning under the tap, soaking in water, putting in the dishwasher, cleaning the blade with an abrasive material, ... These uses can take your Laguiole out of any warranty because you damage both the natural handle material and the opening-closing mechanism for a folding Laguiole.
